

Illumination Station

Have you ever been tempted to do something you shouldn't do? How would you feel if your appearance changed whenever you made a bad choice, and everyone was aware of it? Join new author Jennifer Mauter on a journey to a beautiful, spiritual town called Illumination Station. This town is different in many ways from any town you have ever seen, but the most unique difference is the people. They are special light bulbs that don't require electricity to illuminate. Their only source of power is God's Word. Wally Socketbottom and Sam Halide are two typical ten-year-old boys who get caught up in temptation. They were warned, but when they continued to stray from God's Word, their faces glowed visibly dimmer, and the whole town knew the reason why. Take a trip to Illumination Station, where you will meet the people, share in their experiences, and follow them back to the Lord.
