

This is the kind of book you could write. Everyone has a spiritual journey uniquely their own. Jo Bower's journey is not so unusual as it is unspoken. Locked in the insecurity of always being different from her peers, she struggled to find a way to break out and express the talent God gave her. At the same time the music often saved her emotional life. The longing to express it pushed her and became the reason to continue the struggle even when she could no longer answer the question "why continue?." Then, in the middle of recovery, God sent her life in a whole different direction.....
